Month in Cash: Cyprus—the mouse that roared

April 1, 2013

During late March, all eyes were on the fiscal crisis bubbling over in Cyprus, despite the fact that the tiny island country off southeastern Europe represents only a small portion of the overall EU economy. The crisis seems to have been averted, if only temporarily, with a last-minute agreement that would have international creditors bailing out the troubled country—but only in exchange for a tax on uninsured deposits over 100,000 euros in the country's second biggest bank, a move that could result in a 40% haircut for those depositors. There was some concern in the marketplace that the action might set a precedent, and depositors in other EU countries could be made to suffer if their respective governments couldn't get their fiscal houses in order. Depositors in the stronger EU countries, and in the solvent, high-quality banks within those countries (the banks Federated money funds deal with) aren't likely to be at risk. Large depositors in countries with less-than-solvent governments, such as Greece, might look at the Cypriot "solution" as a sign to get their money out of Greek banks before creditors come calling with an offer for a free haircut.

On the domestic economic front, we continue to see promising signs the recovery is kicking into higher gear. The housing market picked up steam, with better pricing, lower inventory and fewer regional issues, and sales of existing homes and housing starts showing increases. Unemployment was down, with the four-week moving average for unemployment claims dropping to just under 340,000, a new low in the recovery. The most recent Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) meeting statement produced very little in the way of change, however. The statement reiterated the Fed's commitment to keep to a 0% to 0.25% federal funds target as long as unemployment remains above 6.5% and projected inflation runs no more than a half point above its 2% target. The Fed's acknowledgment of improving conditions, however, sparked speculation it might consider, at some point in 2013, scaling back its monthly purchases of $85 billion in longer-term Treasury and agency mortgage-backed securities. While any real movement in the fed funds rate is not likely until 2014, the Fed's acknowledgment of economic gains has got markets thinking more seriously about when—and how—the Fed will bring an end to QE.

Repurchase (repo) rates were better than anticipated in March. They had been expected to run in the high single digits, but in fact held in at the 13–15 basis point range throughout much of the month. This was most likely a reflection of the issuance of cash management bills into the marketplace as tax payments went out from Washington. That might change in mid April—individuals who file their taxes before April 15 are generally those who expect a

Definition of Weighted Average Maturity (1) & (2)

*(1) "WAM Days" is the mean average of the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid, (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, or (c) are scheduled to have their interest rate readjusted to reflect current market rates. Securities with adjustable rates payable upon demand are treated as maturing on the earlier of the two dates set forth in (b) and (c) if their scheduled maturity is 397 days or less; and the later of the two dates set forth in (b) and (c) if their scheduled maturity is more than 397 days. The mean is weighted based on the percentage of the amortized cost of the portfolio invested in each period.

*(2) "WAM Days" is calculated in the same manner as the described in footnote 1, but is based solely on the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid or (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, without reference to when interest rates of securities within TexPool are scheduled to be readjusted.

Definition of Average Monthly Yield (3)

*(3) This current yield for TexPool Prime for each date may reflect a waiver of some portion or all of each of the management fees.

Performance data quoted represents past performance which is no guarantee of future results. Investment return will fluctuate. The value of an investment when redeemed may be worth more or less than the original cost. Current performance may be higher or lower than performance stated.

- (1) "WAM Days" is the mean average of the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid, (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, or (c) are scheduled to have their interest rate readjusted to reflect current market rates. Securities with adjustable rates payable upon demand are treated as maturing on the earlier of the two dates set forth in (b) and (c) if their scheduled maturity is 397 days or less; and the later of the two dates set forth in (b) and (c) if their scheduled maturity is more than 397 days. The mean is weighted based on the percentage of the amortized cost of the portfolio invested in each period.
- (2) "WAM Days" is calculated in the same manner as the described in footnote 1, but is based solely on the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid or (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, without reference to when interest rates of securities within TexPool are scheduled to be readjusted.
- (3) All current yields for TexPool Prime, for each date, reflect a waiver of some of all management fees.
