Month in Cash: Steady as she goes...

May 1, 2012

London interbank offered rates (Libor) were virtually unchanged last month as the domestic economy continued to plod along with a few hiccups and a very proactive European Central Bank (ECB) provided the necessary mechanisms to assure liquidity for European banks. While some European countries continue to struggle with debt issues, the market appears to be comfortable with the support that European banking institutions are getting from the ECB—even if the banks are using the funds more to shore up their balance sheets than to do much good for their respective countries' economies.

Domestically, the initial estimate of first-quarter growth came in slightly below expectations, but not enough to derail our view that the economy is on a sustainable albeit very modest growth path. That's not to say that general uncertainty isn't weighing on the markets. While expectations are that a number of banking institutions may be downgraded by Moody's Investors Service, the ratings agency has pushed off the announcement of its review of U.S. and European banks until May, forcing the money markets to wait and see which and how many institutions might be effected.

Fed sees slight improvement

As expected, there were no great surprises at the conclusion of the late April meeting of Federal Reserve policymakers. The tweaks that were made to the policy language tended to reflect a slightly more optimistic view of the economy, with a modest upgrade in the Fed's forecasts for growth and the unemployment rate this year. Perhaps most notably, the Fed's anonymous vote on the timing and pace of monetary policy tightening pushed the potential move on the target federal funds rate up a bit, though the official statement stuck to the "exceptionally low levels" at least through "late 2014" language. Of 17 participants, three thought the Fed would tighten by the end of this year and three thought it would start next year—the same as January's inaugural vote. What did change is that seven thought tightening could occur in 2014, up from five previously, and four thought it would start in 2015, up from two in January (the other two previously didn't see any movement until 2016). There was more evidence of disagreement within the confines of the Fed as to what "exceptionally low" means, though it seemed clear that Fed Chairman Ben Bernanke sees no ambiguity: exceptionally low means the current 0% to 0.25% range.

Definition of Weighted Average Maturity (1) & (2)

*(1) "WAM Days" is the mean average of the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid, (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, or (c) are scheduled to have their interest rate readjusted to reflect current market rates. Securities with adjustable rates payable upon demand are treated as maturing on the earlier of the two dates set forth in (b) and (c) if their scheduled maturity is 397 days or less; and the later of the two dates set forth in (b) and (c) if their scheduled maturity is more than 397 days. The mean is weighted based on the percentage of the amortized cost of the portfolio invested in each period.

*(2) "WAM Days" is calculated in the same manner as the described in footnote 1, but is based solely on the periods of time remaining until the securities held in TexPool (a) are scheduled to be repaid or (b) would be repaid upon a demand by TexPool, without reference to when interest rates of securities within TexPool are scheduled to be readjusted.

Definition of Average Monthly Yield (3)

*(3) This current yield for TexPool Prime for each date may reflect a waiver of some portion or all of each of the management fees.
